Stromberg Named Microsoft Certified Solution Provider

Lake Mary, FL -- October 18, 1999 – Stromberg, LLC a leader in state-of-the-art time and attendance solutions, announced it has been named a Microsoft Certified Solution Provider (MCSP). Microsoft Certified Solution Providers are independent organizations working with Microsoft and include a wide range of companies, such as system integrators, custom application developers, installation and deployment service providers, business consultants, and training organizations. MCSPs add value by offering their customers a full range of services, including Internet, intranet, and e-commerce solutions, line-of-business applications, and client/server implementations. Another example of Stromberg's commitment to providing their customers with the most technologically advanced and cost-effective labor management solutions in the market today. For more information on the program, visit www.microsoft.com/mcsp/.

"It is of paramount importance that our customer's investment not become technically obsolete shortly after installation. We feel that our on-going commitment to Microsoft products and product development methodologies will insure that we will always be in a position to offer our customers a seamless, cost-effective growth path to mirror their business requirements," said Ted H. Dinkel, President and CEO.

"Stromberg was selected as an MCSP because of its demonstrated expertise with Microsoft products," said Bryan Watson, general manager of partner and corporate account marketing at Microsoft Corp. "With Microsoft Certified Professionals on staff, Stromberg is helping customers maximize their IT investments for the Microsoft Windows platform and we are pleased to have them on board as an MCSP."

Stromberg has fulfilled Microsoft's rigorous requirements and demonstrated the knowledge and proficiency in the marketplace by having several certified employees. By partnering with Microsoft, the market leader in technology, Stromberg can help you effectively provide the best solution in this age of changing technology.
